Dear Sirs:

The enclosed statement from you dated April 11th, is somewhat puzzling. The bill for electric service for $56.00 reached us somewhere in the early part of April, and as this is a business office run on some sort of system, it was held over a few days till the allotted time for attending to such matters, and on April 8th we notified our bank to make payment. Undoubtedly by this time you have received a checque for $56.00 from the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Company. Surely, from the manner in which we have paid our previous accounts and the knowledge you must have of the way in which business offices work, this note of April 11th from your office was unnecessary. It has happened once or twice before.

Very truly yours,

Curator.
